Caelie Doyle boasts over a decade of expertise in global business, operations management, and dispute resolution. Holding dual Masters degrees in Global Business and Mediation, Caelie has cultivated a rich skill set in negotiation training, relationship management education, and conflict resolution. Her remarkable journey at The Citizenry witnessed a remarkable evolution, ascending from the role of Director of Planning and Production to the esteemed position of VP of Planning & E-commerce Operations.

Caelie's professional focus extends to fostering collaboration among Executive Management teams, overseeing international business operations and supply chains, and conducting strategic analysis with a keen eye on risk mitigation. With a background enriched by living and working in diverse countries and cultures, her leadership is characterized by a commitment to operations, planning, and e-commerce.

Recognized for her servant leadership style, Caelie possesses a unique talent for identifying and nurturing individual potential. This approach has enabled her to assemble robust, enduring, and successful teams, witnessing mentees progress into executive roles.

In her capacity as the President of CHVI, Caelie leverages her skills in operations management, cross-functional team leadership, and team building to establish a collaborative and productive work environment. Beyond her corporate endeavors, she passionately co-founded PomPom, a startup addressing the unmet needs of one of the most underserved demographics - older adults - in the realms of care and home services. Caelie's commitment to making a positive impact extends both professionally and socially, embodying a holistic approach to leadership and innovation.
